

THE BOSTON POST, August 4, 1927

PROVINCETOWN'S FESTIVAL

The ancient and fascinating town of Provincetown begins today the festival that marks the 200th anniversary of its incorporation. The four-day celebration will be carried on with dignity, but with an absence of anything approaching dullness that will be duly appreciated by the throngs that are sure to flock to the jubilee.

Provincetown has a right to be proud of itself. It has charm, flavor, distinction. It has a historical background, unexcelled in New England, and it has a record for the producing of noble men and women that is wholly in excess of its mere size.

The State hails old Provincetown with heartiness and trusts that it will never permit itself to lose its own particular charm.