

Back on Bradford Street , facing West - 1939
The Monument from Miller Hill.

About the same view in 1880. The Center Methodist Church, left.
Centenary Church, next on Winthrop Street; then the Universalist, with the old Town Hall on High Pole Hill.

The Houses on Miller Hill facing the wonderful view of the Harbor.

-- September 1946 --

Home of Artist E. Ambrose Webster (behind fence). The pitched roof was the fashion after the Cape Cod house went by... Per Nancy Smith.

From the many mills that were on and near Millers' Hill, its name came. The home of the late Caleb Cook was located on the top, and is now owned by artist E. A. Webster.
Today so many of our artist colony have built homey looking and attractive cottages in this locality, that it is one of the beauty spots of the town. Nice flower beds with attractive nooks show what Provincetown air and soil assisted by the artistic ones can do.

Parallel Street
Messrs. Darcey's Miller Hill section is about done. It is the best graded piece of work in the whole street. It has been done in a thoroughly workmanlike manner. We wish the whole street looked as well, but are sorry to say there is a woeful contrast between this and other sections though we judge that this was one of the most difficult ever. Gen. Butler's land overlooks this part of the street, being one of the Company's best lots.
