Highland Light can be seen on the horizon, right of center.
