Bay cruises for many tastes

The Cape Cod Princess

The Cape Cod Princess, which moors at Fisherman's Wharf in Provincetown, is a boat of many uses, offering Plymouth-to-Provincetown bay crossings, whale-watching tours and dinner and dancing cruises.

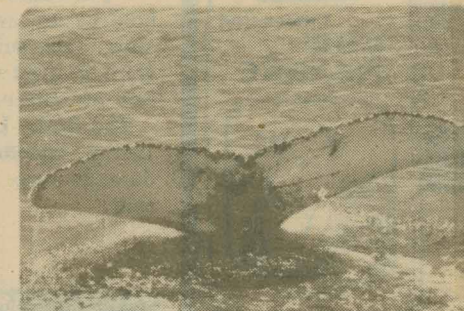

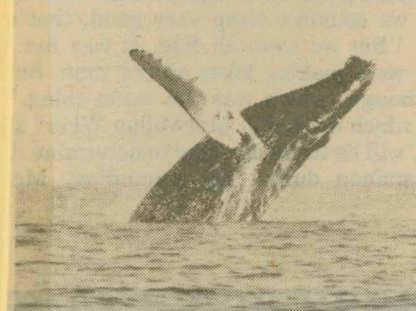

The trip from Plymouth to Provincetown, made each day at 9 a.m., is short, just 26 miles by water, and pleasant. Three-hundred-and-forty-nine passengers can be accommodated aboard the 94-foot-long Princess, which is fitted out with an enclosed main deck and lounge and an upper deck canopy and bar.

Skimming across Cape Cod Bay with a cool drink on a sunny day is a perfect vacation activity.

From noon to 4 p.m. daily, the Princess takes passengers on whale-watching trips in the bay, and in the evening the dinner and dancing offers passengers a relaxing sunset ride along the Cape shoreline. Different cruises are held each night of the week, including a lobster/clambake dinner-dance cruise, Provincetown moonlight music cruise, Cape Cod Bay love cruises, which leave from Plymouth and Sunday special events.

The sleek cruise ship provides something for everyone. For information about the ship, visit Fisherman's Wharf.
