
A Book for the Tourist

“If you have only an hour to stay,—

“If you stay a day, walk the length of the sidewalk, three miles or more, on the crowded street hugging the shore. This is the street strangers refer to when they say there is but one street in Provincetown.

“Climb to the top of the Pilgrim Monument,—the effort of the ascent is well repaid by the view of the majestic harbor below, the glittering spiral of sand surrounding it, the bay broadening into the ocean.

“Visit the ART MUSEUM—

“If you have a week,—

“If you enter into the life of the people,—”
