KENNEDY'S REP. For those on the bottom of the political totem pole, it's nice to have friends in high places to complain to. But where do those at the top go to gripe? Well, to their congressman, of course. The Studds for Congress Committee is throwing a $50-a-ticket party tonight for U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds at Tabor Academy in Marion to help finance his reelection. Hosting the party will be U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, now officially in the running for president.

The press release makes it very clear why Kennedy is taking time out from his busy schedule to host the party. Studds is his congressman. And you never know when you can use a favor.

DOLPHINS. Two striped dolphins that were observed circling in Provincetown harbor over the weekend shall remain nameless, a sign of their good fortune since aquarium officials only name marine mammals after rescuing them from the beaches.

Provincetown Aquarium president Jackie Gleason, after observing the two traveling in tight circles between MacMillian Wharf and the CeeJay Marina Saturday morning, called George

King of Sealand of Cape Cod with a plea for a rescue team, expecting the animals to throw themselves on the beach.

But by Sunday the two had quit circling—a typical sign of distress—and after dark Monday they rejoined the herd of dolphins fishermen had noticed swimming in a holding pattern seaward of the breakwater all during the touch-and-go period.

Gleason said striped dolphins are a rarity in this harbor. She said the weekend's visitors were only the second and third of the species that she knows of to ever enter the harbor. Don Martel of the Department of Agriculture came to Provincetown at Gleason's request Sunday to identify the animals. She said she had assured him over the telephone that the animals were striped dolphins, but he refused to fully believe her until he's seen them himself.

Gleason said their coming into the harbor is doubly unusual because the species is native to deep waters, not coastal areas. She said even when they are spotted off the East Coast they are seen only far offshore.

SORRY NANCY. The announcement last week that Karen Tarvers of North Truro recently passed her state nursing boards was incomplete. The article mentioned that Karen is the daughter of Truro Selectman Bruce Tarvers. Omitted was any mention of Karen's mother Nancy Tarvers. Bruce, was quick to point out the error and gave The Advocate a biology lesson. "Without Mrs. Tarvers there wouldn't be a Karen Tarvers," he said. He also offered a lesson in politics. "For that matter," he said, "there probably wouldn't be a Selectman Tarvers, either."

FELLOW. The medical director of Health Associates of Provincetown, Dr. Frank Zampietro, was recently named a Fellow of the American Academy of Family Physicians. The degree of fellowship may be attained by either successful completion of 600 or more hours of accredited continuing medical study, or achievement of diplomat status in family practice by passing an exam given by the American Board of Family Practice.

CORRECTION. The last three paragraphs of an article in the Nov. 15 Advocate on the harbor improvements meeting held that night quoted Harbormaster Pidge Carter as saying that town taxpayers should not be expected to subsidize wharf operations for the benefit of a few families. That opinion was actually given by Bob Cabral, owner of the CeeJay Marina, but a typographical error incorrectly attributed it to Carter.
