

1939

Sara Lois Wood has a charming outdoor exhibition of oil paintings—Bradford St. East End

July 21, 1938

Some Like Florida But Not O'Briens

Sara Lois Wood Can't See It
For Provincetown and
The Cape

Two of Provincetown's most loyal supporters are Sara Lois Wood and her husband, Jim O'Brien, who with their motor caravan are parked in the rear of Mrs Mayo's Cape Codder during the summer while Sara paints pictures and Jim sells them. And he sells them.

In the winter they are in Florida, not from choice, but because the tourist crowds are there, and under the palm trees and southern sun they count the days until they turn north to the Cape and Provincetown.

(O'Briens are in Bill Mayo's back yard, and not Charlie's, which is the Cape Codder.)

----- Facing west from above Snow St., which is the first on the left. Conway is the next street down the hill, then there's Charlie's garage again. Know where you are?